It all begins with a humble Pope with a different plan for this and the next world. ISBN 978-0-9972472-5-1

When her infant daughter Sarah unexpectedly dies, Claire, feeling blame, reinvents herself as a landscape gardener in Los Angeles. Meanwhile, Claire imagines Sarah still alive, marking her birthdays, Christmas, first day of school—as if Sarah never died. Remarrying, Claire acquires a step-daughter, eight-year-old Mandy—about the age Sarah would be had she lived. Part vamp, part jealous, bossy and troubled, Mandy is nothing like Sarah, who still lives on in Claire's imagination. As Claire lives two lives—one real, one imagined—the clash between the two daughters threatens to destroy her, releasing the demons she has managed, so far, to hold at bay. As the story hurtles towards its harrowing conclusion, Claire must choose between her new life and her haunted past.

One usually believes, at least in the Christian faith, that once the earthly life ends, if one has sufficient merits, the heavenly life begins. Maybe someone spoke to us at some point in a transit place called Purgatory, but surely we do not pay much attention. In the same way that we only assimilate the most interesting part of a story to discard the unattractive details, our mind imprints a romantic stamp on the process of transformation into eternal life. Of course the media also had a lot to do, who does not remember seeing the image of a charming little angel with wings and white dress? Who has not heard of the light at the end of the tunnel, the images of our life traveling at high speed? What happens, in fact, is more than we can imagine. And what happens when the possibility of return is presented to us?

FALLING BUT FULFILLED: Reflections on Multiple Intelligences (Savant 2010) by

Zachary M. Oliver

Non-Fiction: Education, Intelligences

200 pp. 6" x 9" Softcover - ISBN 978-0-9845552-7-7

NEUROBIOLOGICAL LEARNING SOCIETY CHOICE AWARD

Education reform has become one of the most hotly contested topics in America today. Rather than focus on test scores, federal or private funds, or political conflicts, Dr. Zachary Oliver has fashioned a unique memoir that takes a powerful learning theory, Multiple Intelligences (MI) Theory, and demonstrates, through the story of his life, from his childhood to his years as an educator, the ways in which education touches nearly every activity of our lives.

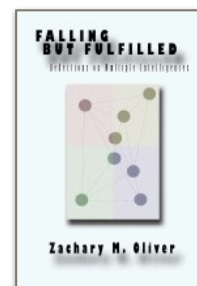

In Falling but Fulfilled, Dr. Oliver demonstrates how learning is an integral part of life, not just a statistic or test score, that is felt and obtained through reflection on the vast array of experiences that constitute our lives.

Historical Fiction: Ancient Greece/Egypt, hermit Ancient Greek/Egyptian, Hermit, Spiritual, Drama - 468 pp. - 6" x 9" Softcover

ISBN 978-0-9860233-3-0

In the first volume of the Commandment trilogy, we left Zachary, the failed hermit, as he began to expiate his sins in the interior desert of fourth-century Egypt. This second volume links his story with that of Leila, the peasant girl whom the bandit Darion saved from rape at the hands of his gang. While Zachary goes through a series of bizarre experiences in a lost desert oasis, Leila travels to the White Monastery, ruled by the ruthless Shenoute, where instead of the holy calm she expected she finds only lesbian practices and spiteful intrigue. When Zachary falls mortally ill he is rescued by an unexpected savior, and recovers to find himself a peasant in the Nile valley. There he meets Leila, who has been expelled from the White Monastery, and slowly, cautiously, almost unwillingly these two "Casualties of the Life", as they call themselves, begin to fall in love. Once again, with exemplary research and evocative writing, Derek Bickerton brings to life an exotic but little-known period of history, and sheds a unique light on the early development of Christianity—both its good and its bad sides.

A love-song for a tumultuous time in India, IN THE HIMALAYAN NIGHTS, captures eighteen days and evenings in 1977, at a moment when India teetered on the edge of what it would become as it reincarnated for a postmodern, hyper-real world. Struggling with questions about the nature of morality, the authenticity of folk heroes, and the reality of ritual possession, an Indian-American anthropologist, his wife, and his graduate students witness a performance of the ancient Bhagavad Gita. Whether because of the hypnotic drumming or the inspired analysis emerging from the group and their hosts, each become entangled in what can only be appropriately called their own dharmic war.

2009: A 40th High School reunion marks more than a passing of time for Tom Kelleher as he seeks rejuvenation and answers in facing the question of his own mortality. In Nina, who owns the early chapter of Tom's life, he thinks he might have found an answer. After standing in her own personal fires, Nina Hassel, whose brilliance and beauty mirror her self-destructive and self-doubting nihilism, looks to the reunion to reconnect with him across time in the millennial age of instant time-travel; one which is far more technological and socially networked than the one in which they first discovered one another. As the reunion nears and their respective spouses stand unknowingly by, Tom and Nina use their past with its conflicts and entanglements to write and re-write their lives together and apart. Together, they spontaneously road trip to an iconic monument to lost youth, discover their narrative, and evolve a new trajectory at the place where James Dean transitioned into eternity, Polonio Pass.

Murder, mayhem, militias, marijuana, mafia and The Mons. A criminal history of Tampa focusing on its most infamous people and events of the past century. Historians seem to love painting a picture of Tampa's past as one of immigrants happily working side-by-side to create a utopian society that became the cigar capital of the world and later a destination hailed as one of "the nation's next best cities." While this is true to some extent, Tampa also has a dark side. Whether known or unknown, good or bad, each of the individuals explored in this book had an impact on Tampa's history.

Among the dunes and in the full glare of the desert sun, young Zachary finds that the madness, the politics, and the appetites which we all try to escape from, dwell deep within each and every one of us. Late in the 4th century AD, the young Greek man abandons his family's home in Alexandria with its wealth, comfort, and a promising future with a beautiful girl betrothed to him, to venture out into the desert to prove the earnestness of his Christian faith among the fascinating mix of misfits who have chosen to pursue a Christ-centered life. There, among the hermits, he earns crusts of bread, calloused hands, and the derision of the older adepts. Unfortunately, before coming to the conclusion that his romanticized idea of giving away his wealth to pursue the ascetic life was not as simple as he originally thought, he finds himself as part of a fanatical mob bent on smashing a pagan temple and burning Ptolemy's famed library and all of its collected wisdom.

In creating the book, I was myself pleasantly surprised that while the foci, presentations and media changed over time, my interest in portraying people in relation to today's big-city world didn't. By the way, the title, "Interzone," was inspired by a rock band named Joy Division, whose music inspired me to capture the infinite faces of life during one's journey from the darkness and coldness of beginning.

"We chose the place for its neutrality. The Brits opted for its inaccessibility and the Israelis agreed because of its impregnability," Agent Joseph Falk's voice crackled in the earphones of fellow Agent Susan Koski as she swept her binoculars across the vastness of the dark green sea below to focus on the jagged black rock that comprised the home of Flangenan Lighthouse. A lighthouse clinging tenaciously to the rocky outcroppings three miles west of Tiree Island for over one hundred years, once crisp and white, its conical structure embedded into the northernmost tip of land, was now weather-worn to a splotchy grey. Then she spied a concrete bunker recently added to the west curve of the lighthouse, then yet another built into the east face of the rock cliff... In their sixth adventure, Koski and Falk face what may be one of their most deadly assignments yet: Operation Solar Triangle. Book seven of seven in the riveting Koski & Falk Thriller series.

UNIVERSITY AND KING (Aignos 2014) by Jeffrey Ryan Long

Fiction: General, Short Story Collection

198 pp - 6" x 9" Softcover Trade Book

ISBN 978-0-9895191-5-1

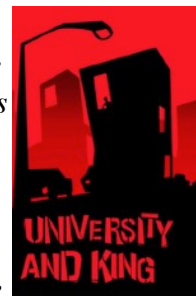

This little book is a jewel. Contained in these covers are the stories of real people living their strange and always entertaining little lives. Sometimes, the characters stumble around trapped in their own absurdities. Sometimes, the characters have a flash, a moment of awareness, of self-discovery -and, to their credit- not the annoying self-congratulatory chicken soup kind of clarity. No, these misadventures hit close to home and in places we drive past, sit at the light at, wait for the bus at, places which blur past at the speed of a postmodern life in the shadow of Diamond Head.
